7:30 p.m. Program: The Addison County River Watch Collaborative (ACRWC) will provide an update on their water quality sampling activities in the county. They will share recent results and educational outreach they have presented to municipalities and the public. Kristen Underwood of South Mountain Research and Consulting will also present summary results from recent sampling in Little Otter Creek and the New Haven River, which focused on enhancing flood resilience and improving water quality in headwater forests.

ACRWC is a not-for-profit organization that collects water samples at about 30 stations around the county during spring and summer months. Water quality measurements include bacteria, phosphorus, nitrogen and turbidity. Samples are collected from: Middlebury River, Otter Creek, New Haven River, Little Otter Creek, Lemon Fair, and Lewis Creek. The recently passed Vermont Clean Water Act provides for increased outreach to communities and the public on the value of clean water and on water quality goals in the Otter Creek Basin.
